BOARD MOVES TO END TIE FOR MAYOR

CAPITAL SEES SAWYER, DAVEY IN NEW FIGHT

Duffy Attacks Governor and Other Present Leaders in Shakeup Demand

"IN INCAPABLE HANDS"

Calls on Cincinnati Man to Announce Candidacy for 1936 Primary

COLUMBUS, Nov. 7.—(INS)—In the wake of Tuesday's Republican landslide in major municipal contests there arose today a new demand for new leadership of the Democratic party in Ohio, and developments of the past 24 hours convinced most observers that Charles Sawyer, Cincinnati, will oppose Gov. Martin L. Davey's renomination in 1936.

Sawyer, former lieutenant governor, who with William G. Pickrel, Dayton, ran against Davey in the 1934 Democratic primary, served notice that he is "giving careful consideration" to running again in 1936.

Duffy Opens Attack

Meanwhile, Herbert S. Duffy, Democratic nominee for attorney general last year, issued a sharply-worded statement calling for a "new deal" within the Democratic party in Ohio. Results of Tuesday's election, he declared, "clearly demonstrate that the leadership of our party, residing as it does in the present governor, Martin L. Davey, is in hopelessly inefficient and incapable hands."

Duffy charged that many responsible Democratic public officials were penalized in the recent municipal elections and in many instances defeated "because of their allegiance to that faith"

CHILlicothe's CHARTER LOSES

Defeated By 134 Votes; Fayette Beats Hospital

Chillicothe's effort to form a charter commission with eventual city manager form of government lost by only 134 votes. Dr. Ralph Holmes, president of the Good Government league, announced his organization would continue its efforts.

Chillicothe, Tuesday, elected its entire Democratic ticket for the first time in 30 years. Election of James Ford as mayor is a direct blow at Garrett Claypool and his county organization. Claypool built up Ford for senator, they had a break during the tenure of office and since that time have been like a couple of wet hens when the name of either is mentioned.

Over in Fayette-co., a move for a county hospital was defeated by the rural precincts. The city gave the hospital a 253 margin but the outlying communities didn't think so much of the plan. The local hospital was to have been a model.

Washington C. H. voted to operate under the city manager plan of government.

Lancaster defeated a $210,000 bond issue for a sewage disposal plant by a No. 3,013; Yes, 2,178 ballot.

Kingston passed a bond issue for construction of a storm sewer in conjunction with PWA help.

A. B. Vreelbome, former Pickaway countian, was re-elected to the Lancaster board of education.

630 HOGS IN SALE

A total of 630 hogs were sold on the local livestock yards Wednesday with the price ranging between 9 and 9.15. Officials considered the volume about the average for this season.

WELL, WELL "LOVERS" INDEED

LITTLE Miss Nona Lee Schultz certainly is not afraid of dogs, as this picture portrays. The two-year-old child just stepped right up and gave "Formula," a bull mastiff, a hug and kiss when she saw him. The tender scene, although not on the program, was enacted at the annual show of the Philadelphia Kennel club in Philadelphia, Pa.

Woman, 42, Who Tried to Drown Two Girls, Jailed

Mrs. Spurgeon Grief-Stricken; Children Saved By Action of Workmen; Unrequited Love is Blamed

COLUMBUS, Nov. 7.—Grief stricken over her failure to end her life, Mrs. Merrill Spurgeon, 42-year-old Portsmouth widow, languished in county jail here today while authorities debated over what charges to file against her.

Mrs. Spurgeon, officials said, was frustrated in her effort to drown herself, her 10-year-old daughter and the daughter of a former suitor, over whom she had brooded, when carpenters were attracted by screams of the two children at Big Walnut creek, south of here.

Held in County Jail
Prosecutor Donald J. Hoskins, Sheriff Ross J. Anderson and city police officials held her in county jail today while they debated what charges to file.

Her daughter, Ruth, 10, and Marilyn Price, daughter of the man she loved, were safe with relatives.

Screams of the girls as the widow forced them to walk with her into Big Walnut creek, south of here, attracted the attention of men working nearby. They thwarted Mrs. Spurgeon's death plans.

Mrs. Spurgeon's husband died four years ago. Her romance with R. M. Price, local salesman and father of Marilyn, was broken off eight months ago, she told deputy sheriffs. He has since married.

Called at School
Driving her from Portsmouth with her own daughter, Mrs. Spurgeon called at school for Marilyn, telling the principal the little girl's aunt was seriously ill.

Ruth said her mother then drove out of town at high speed until she came to the Big Walnut Creek bridge. Here, deputies quoted the widow as saying, she decided "this would be a good chance to end it all."

Her own daughter wriggled free from Mrs. Spurgeon in the creek, but she had twice ducked Marilyn when workmen, hearing the children's screams, interrupted her plans.

Mrs. Spurgeon was taken to the county jail. No charges have been filed pending an investigation by Sheriff Ross Anderson.

CATTLE, THROWN FROM TRUCK, ARE UNINJURED

The truck was turned over. Mr. O'Neal was not hurt but Mr. Chambers suffered a number of bruises. His grandson, riding with him, was not injured.

HANNAN TO FACE FAIRFIELD JUDGE ON 15 CHARGES

Kelly R. Hannan, former local automobile dealer, will face Judge Frank M. Acton in Lancaster Saturday morning to plead to grand jury indictments in 15 check charges. Hannan, who left for parts unknown last June, surrendered to Fairfield-co. police Monday.

The total amount involved in the case is $6,248.73. The Colonial Finance Co. of Lima is seeking to recover on two checks, one for $3,480 and the other for $2,260. The finance company charges Hannan and his wife left to avoid service of summons and absconded to defraud creditors. BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Nov. 7.—(INS)—W. K. Kellogg sprung a surprise on employees of his plant today, announcing an average wage increase of 12 1/2 per cent for all male workers on a six-hour day working basis.

At the same time, the manufacturer, who established the 6-hour day five years, urged the nation's employers to try the shorter working day as a means of operating their plants more successfully and solving the unemployment problem.

Under the new wage scale, retroactive to Oct. 28, the minimum pay for janitors and unskilled workers is $27 weekly for a 6-hour day, and salaries in the higher bracket are raised proportionately, Kellogg announced.

HITLER REJECTS LEAGUE DEMAND FOR 'SANCTIONS'

Declares Strict Adherence to Neutrality Pledge to Be Observed By Germany

HURTS PEACE CHANCES

Italy's Neighbors Begin to Save Foodstuffs Expecting Higher Prices

(Copyright, 1935, by International News Service)

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—(INS)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler flatly though indirectly today rejected the League of Nations plea for Germany's active participation in sanctions against Italy.

The rejection was made in a negative official announcement denying Germany had answered the League's plea. It had been announced in Geneva Germany had agreed to aid sanctions.

Will Not Answer

This Geneva announcement was termed in high quarters as "denial" International News Service was informed Germany not only has not answered the League's sanctions memorandum—similar to one sent to the United States and other non-member states—but has no intention of doing so in the future.

While asserting that the German embargo on the export of undisguised war materials will continue, high quarters informed International News Service that Germany is unwilling to join in sanctions against Italy on the ground that any active participation would be tantamount to abandonment of the strict neutrality policy to which Germany has adhered thus far.

Looking for Boom

It was declared that neighboring countries, primarily Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia, and foodstuffs and raw materials in Austria, already are hoarding the expectation of a boom in Italian prices and forced purchases, thus directly pinching German imports of food and raw material and provoking a "serious situation."

The world-famed evangelist had been in ill health since February.

1933, when he suffered a heart attack while preaching in Des Moines, but had remained more or less active until last Tuesday evening when he went to bed complaining of "pains."

At With Family
Last night, however, he felt well enough to have dinner with his wife and the Thompsons. He chatted with them for a while, but at eight o'clock retired to his room to "rest a bit."

He had been gone but a few minutes when his wife heard him cry out. Hastening to his side, she found him suffering intensely.

opes and sealed. They are put aside and kept to settle ties or other disputes. Secretary of State George S. Myers announced today that the official count will not be known until all disputed ballots have been examined and either counted or discarded.

The tie may be broken in this manner with board of election members to pass their judgment on the eligibility of the ballots. In case a tie ballot exists, Mr. Myers pointed out, the election board will decide the outcome by a lot whether or not the candidates desire such action. "That is the law," Mr. Myers said, "and the board will follow the law."

Mayor Cady, Wednesday declared he was against deciding the question by lot.

Benefit of Public
"Elections" Mr. Myers went on "are for the benefit of the public and good government and are not operated for the benefit of candidates. The board will follow its own good judgment in settling this or any other disputes."

After the coin is tossed the person losing can demand a recount in any or all precincts providing he posts his bond, the secretary of state pointed out.

SEEK TO WIDEN COURT STREET

North End Work Needed; to Meet State Officials

The service director and engineer were instructed by council Wednesday night to meet with state highway officials and learn what part the department would take in the widening of Court-st from the bend, north of Pleasant-st, to the corporation line.

WPA officials explained the reconstruction work was started at the south end so the proposed street widening could be worked out. They believed it would be only a few years until the widening would be demanded and it would be foolish to rebuild the street at its present width if the widening program could be worked out at this time. The street should be approximately nine feet wider, council was told.

Many councilmen believed since the street was now a state highway, the highway department should obtain the right of way for the improvement.

SAWYER STILL "CONSIDERING" GOVERNOR RACE

Writes Lima Editor He Has Made No Decision; Plans Two Addresses

LIMA, Nov. 7.—(INS)—Charles Sawyer, Cincinnati, former lieutenant governor, announced today he is still a potential gubernatorial candidate in 1936 despite rumors that he will not oppose Gov. Martin L. Davey for re-election.

In a letter to Earl R. Leach, editor of The Lima News, Sawyer today declared "I have not yet made a decision."

"This will serve as an answer to suggestions that I have decided not to run," he declared. "You may tell anyone inquiring of you that I have made no such decision and that I am still giving the matter careful consideration."

Sawyer said he has received thousands of letters similar to a query sent him by Leach, who stated: "I am exceedingly anxious that you should run, and I know it to be the sentiment of thousands of other Democrats throughout the state."

Meanwhile Sawyer announced two speaking engagements next week. He will speak over radio station WLW, Cincinnati, at 7:30 p.m. Sunday and next Thursday noon will address the Akron Kiwanis club, discussing "The Forgotten Man—The Taxpayer."

Rightmire Completes 10 Years as OSU President

GEORGE W. RIGHTMIRE
PRESIDENT OF OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

COLUMBUS, Nov. 7.—George W. Rightmire this week completed 10 years as president of Ohio State university, and the largest student body in the history of the school is helping to celebrate the anniversary.

President Rightmire's achievements are all the more notable, because they have come in his home state—proving once again that a prophet can win honors in his home country.

He was born in a little charcoal furnace town of Lawrence-co, and taught country schools near Portsmouth to earn funds for his college education. Coming to Ohio State as a student in 1889, he has been closely associated with the university almost continuously since that time.

Scores of Pickaway-co young people have come under his influence in these years and have the highest regard for him.

In his student days the southern Ohio lad was noted as an athlete particularly in football and track, and later he became Ohio State's graduate manager of athletics. In 1912, as president of the athletic board he conducted the campaign to secure admission of Ohio State to the Western Conference.

When President William Oxley Thompson resigned in 1925, the board of trustees called upon Professor Rightmire of the law college to become acting president. During the next few months the board painstakingly studied the qualifications of 40 leading U. S. educators. In the end they decided that the best of all was already on the job, and the word "acting" disappeared from Mr. Rightmire's title.

The new president started immediately on a program of "personalizing" education—bringing closer relationships between student and teacher in the nation's sixth largest university. He succeeded to a marked degree. Another achievement of his regime has been the opening of cooperative dormitories, to bring university training within the reach of Ohio students who could not otherwise afford it.

PROPOSED LAW NOT TO AFFECT CAREFUL DRIVER

West Declares Proposed License Law Only to Remove Reckless Driver

COLUMBUS, Nov. 7.—The careful Ohio motorist need have no fear of the Drivers' license law now awaiting passage in the general assembly, Frank West, registrar of motor vehicles, pointed out today.

The law however, will be an effective means of removing the reckless and drunken driver from the highways.

Under the proposed law, the motorist will have to be examined by the Registrar or one of his deputies as to his knowledge of motor vehicle laws, his ability to understand traffic signs and warnings, a satisfactory demonstration as to his driving capacity, and a test of his eyesight.

On the payment of 25 cents for a fee and a 15 cent charge to the deputy registrars, the applicant, if he passed the test, will receive his license. The license card will carry name and description.

But keeping the license will be a different matter.

Under the law, the judge of any court will have the authority to suspend or revoke the license of any persons convicted of manslaughter in connection with a traffic fatality, using a false name in applying for a license, driving a vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors or drugs, or convicted of any crime punishable as a felony while using an automobile.

Even though a driver's license may not necessarily be suspended if he is arrested for speeding, reckless driving or other offense, the facts of such arrest will be noted on his license card and also on the duplicate card to be kept in the registry of motor vehicles. These facts will be used against the driver if he is arrested for a second offense.

The new law thus puts a premium upon careful driving while it seeks to curb reckless operation of automobiles and remove the "drunken" driver from the roads. As in other states, where drivers' license laws have been found to be extremely useful, suspension of licenses will be made for certain periods of time, depending upon the degree of the offense, and complete revocation will follow consistent violation of traffic laws.

Corn Husking Contest To be Broadcast Friday

Totten to Be on Microphone; Secretary of Agriculture Scheduled for Talk; Levitski Sunday Feature

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—When the National Cornhusking Contest, popularly called the "corn belt derby," gets under way on a farm near Newtown, Fountain-co, Indiana, on Friday, Nov. 8, the National Farm and Home Hour microphone will be on the scene to relay a running account of the event to a nationwide NBC-WJZ network at 12:30 p. m., E. S. T.

Hal Totten, veteran NBC sports and world series announcer, and Everett Mitchell, master-of-ceremonies on the Farm and Home Hour, will collaborate in describing this unusual farm sports event.

The newest of short wave radio broadcasting equipment will be employed in bringing the program direct from the field to the NBC network. Totten will broadcast his observations of the contest from a position atop the NBC mobile-transmitter which will follow the huskers down the long rows of corn. Mitchell will present his views of the match and interview prominent visitors from a booth erected at one end of the field. A two-way telephone system will be installed for the two announcers.

A feature of the Farm and Home Hour program will be a brief talk by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, the man who originated cornhusking contests in Iowa in 1924. Secretary Wallace will make a special trip from Washington to attend the contest.

Mischa Levitski, famous Russo-American pianist, will be guest soloist of the Sunday Evening Hour program of Sunday, Nov. 10, when it is broadcast from 9 to 10 p. m. over CBS.

Mr. Levitski will contribute two selections to the program, which features also the music of the symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Victor Kolar. In the first half of the concert, he will offer the brilliant "Allegro Affettuoso" movement of Schumann's Concerto in A Major with the orchestra. In his second appearance, he will play Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6."

The orchestra also will play a Mendelssohn composition, the famous overture to "Ruy Blas"; and in addition will be heard in Grainger's "Colonial Song," as well as Moszkowski's striking "Malguzena," and Grieg's "The Last Spring." The orchestra and chorus together will present Gounod's "The Soldier's Chorus," from "Faust," while the chorus will be heard with organ in De Koven's musical setting from the Kipling poem, "The Recessional," offered in commemoration of Armistice Day.

"Billy's" sermons as he waged his campaign against rum and the devil, caught the public fancy. He became the country's greatest showman, a master of crowd psychology.

But "Billy" refused to commercialize on his religion. In 1931 he refused an offer of $1,000,000 to go into the movies, declaring: "God almighty gave me my reputation. It's not for sale."

His preaching was simple and sincere. Despite the hyper-dramatization with which he presented his faith, he insisted he was "as com-

Paul T. Sunday, enroute here from mon as an old shoe," and though the homely language and shirt-sleeved vigor with which he persuaded thousands of listeners to "come up the sawdust trail" shocked staid and stolid clergy men, "Billy" was content to rest on his record of thousands of converts.

He preached his last sermon at a Methodist church at Mishawaka, Ind., last Oct. 27, when between 30 and 40 converts went to the altar to wrestle with "booze and the devil."

MADE IN RUSSIA

THERE has been very little weather and almost no talk about it this season, a state of affairs contrary to the adages as well as to conditions in the recent years. But now, at last, business is picking up, and the prospects for illuminating discussion and perhaps some first-class weather are immense.

The reason is profound and expert confirmation of a belief long held in a haphazard sort of way. Always it has been more or less generally understood that much of the weather in the United States was manufactured beyond its borders. Winter storms sweep across our continent from the Pacific to the Atlantic. Hurricanes which blast the Florida coast are visitors from the tropics.

These things we have known, but now the field is broadened. We shall look in the future for our winter storms (in their infancy, at any rate) to Asia. Returning from a weather conference in the land of the Soviets, Willis R. Gregg, weather bureau man, says soon we may have weather reports from far-flung Russian outposts. It is his expert opinion that much American weather is a Siberian product, entering the United States after crossing Alaska and the Canadian Northwest—and probably getting colder all along the way.

Most persons heretofore have given little thought to the possibility that perhaps the winter storm whose blustering winds pile high the drifts is a Siberian importation. But they will not be surprised when told that such may be the case. They can readily in imagination picture the clouds as bearing the label "Made in Siberia." Mr. Gregg says that with Siberian weather news the American forecasts may be improved. But he offers no suggestions for the improvement of Siberian weather. It merely bears out an old observation that everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it.

American genius, moans a critic, has been directed mainly toward profit making. Well, hasn't it required genius during the past five years?

Even in the midst of war's excitement and alarms we must pause a moment to admire Haile Selassie's permanent wave.

The world has never been so full of menaces. Hurricanes menace Florida. War menaces Europe. Earthquakes menace Montana and before long the bonus will menace the treasury.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

With millions of men jobless, there are not enough trained men to go around. That is the plaint of industry.

The reason is clear—men were not trained during the depression.

Furthermore, trained men learned during the depression and still are learning during recovery that there is no real security even for trained men.

Employers now are organizing in various industrial centers to train men.

But, as organized workers point out, there is no assurance that jobs will be secure, or that earnings will keep pace with living costs.

WHAT COULD BE DONE

A suggestion has been made by workers (not by employers) that the government could operate plants to fulfill the wants of the needy during periods of slack. (The needy require just as much to live then as during prosperous periods.)

Thus men—especially young men out of school—would be taught trades.

If, instead of the haphazard relief the government had put one-tenth of the sum into such factories, training men and produc-

WHAT'S BACK OF WASHINGTON REPORTS ON SENSATIONAL CABINET SHAKEUP

WASHINGTON—For more than a month political Washington has been agitated by insistent predictions of a sensational Cabinet shakeup.

Some reports have it that the President plans a drastic revamping of his official family that will eliminate most of its members. Other reports number the casualties at only two or three—which is much more likely.

Reported Cabinet changes are an old Washington phenomenon. Sometimes they occur, most often they don't. The Roosevelt regime has been no exception. Rumors of this or that Cabinet member getting out have popped up with almost clock-like regularity.

However, there is more behind the present report than mere wise-thinking. The inside fact is that the President would like to clean house in his Cabinet.

He has given the matter considerable thought and has talked about it to a few of his closest intimates. During his Hyde Park stay preceding the trans-continental trip, Roosevelt told one bosom associate that when he returned to Washington he would "tighten up our inner lines."

WHEN----

Despite the innermost circle there is a sharp difference of opinion. One side wants "The Skipper" to wield the axe without delay. They argue that lack of administrative effectiveness and efficiency is one of the major weaknesses of the New Deal and the sooner it is strengthened the better. Cleaning house before the campaign would rob the Republicans of a telling argument.

The other side is advising delay until after election. They do not deny the need of tightening the inner lines, but claim that an early house-cleaning might have a bad political reaction.

So far there is no definite indication of which way the President will move.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The NRA's hope for a survey of the steel industry with the cooperation of the manufacturers went glimmering the other day when the American Iron and Steel Institute withdrew its previous offer to collaborate on the ground that it could not afford the expense. . . . The latest addition to Government agents is "R-men", a designation given by South Dakotans to Work-Reliefers, employed in keeping rabbits out of newly planted forest preserves. The rabbits create havoc with young saplings. . . . So rapid is the progress being made in authorities now believe a regular trans-ocean airmail transportation that postal Atlantic service, via the southern route, Bermuda and the Azores, will be established next Spring.

We hope that Mahatma Gandhi will pardon our seeming lack of interest, but in the rush of world affairs we have lost trace of his doings, though we hope he is eating regularly every day.

In the event that he really wants to escape excessive taxation, Mr. Hearst might consider moving his California ranch to the North Pole.

SPECULATE PRICES

Secretary of the Interior Henry A. Wallace has warned against speculative land values for farms. He visions, with apprehension, a rise to boom prices, with consequent collapse—a collapse that again would wipe out all the arduous efforts of the recovery years.

It is not only Secretary Wallace who is warning against speculative values.

The word is going around Wall Street to beware of "inflationary" stock values. Wise men are saying that extravagance of credit is likely to increase prices considerably—it is purely a matter of gambing—but that eventually a break must come.

Prices and costs, in the majority of instances, are not based on normal supply and demand, or on earnings, but on such inflationary processes as cheap credit, bounties for restriction of production and government spending.

TAXES THE CAUSE?

General Hugh Johnson's attacks on President Roosevelt now are being blamed on Barney Baruch's anger over the higher taxes for the upper brackets. Johnson is Baruch's man. At any rate, the president no longer consults Baruch.

CHAPTER 46
"DO YOU suppose she has made a mistake?" Miranda asked anxiously. The invitation sounded exciting to her.
"I am sure she has," Carol said slowly, as her excitement died with the realization that it couldn't be he since he didn't even know her name.
"Well, it's quite possible that you might have met him in Paris," Miranda stretched her imagination and stressed the word "might."
"You're a faker," Carol said, pinching her lightly on the cheek. "You want to accept this invitation so you are willing to pretend."
"It can't do any harm," Miranda said, thinking of the maze of untruths in which they were already involved. "And I should like to meet the marquessa. She must be nearly my own age to have a grown nephew. Perhaps she knows how to play Canfield."
"Perhaps she does," Carol said. "And it will be worth the trip to see. Of course, we must explain that we did not meet her nephew."
That afternoon Carol played tennis with her new-found friends. She presented them to Miranda on the terrace after dinner, and when Miranda had gone to bed, she played contract with them on the terrace off their rooms.
"Fencing is more fun than anything else to do in Nice," Mimi told her. "We're going off to a very special beach tomorrow. Wear your oldest rags. We'll be gone until dinner time and tomorrow night we're going down to the Casino."
How different Mimi looked from the tomboy on the beach. Dead white lace set off the racy fan of her skin, the sheen of her black hair, scarlet lips and nails, the green of her long jade cigarette holder made sharp accent notes against the black and white. Carol was absorbed in her study of the sophisticated hostess and lost the thread of the conversation.
"We'll meet on the beach. The servants will have everything packed and we're taking Luisa along to cook for us. Do you suppose your aunt would like to join us?"
"Oh, I'm sorry," Carol answered. "I would love to do it but I can't. I do it another day? I mean, won't you ask me on your next picnic?"
Tony answered for her. "But we will. We wouldn't think of letting a good tennis player like you get away from us. Louis has been bemoaning the fact that he had to play with Hilda and she always beats him."
"Thought you were a stranger here. Come along. You can do your sightseeing another day," Hilda Truman came wandering through the door. Carol thought she would never get over her surprise at the way these smart people assumed sophisticated personalities when night came on and they donned their Paris gowns. Hilda Truman wore gleaming jade satin and looked as though it had been poured on her.
Carol wondered if she seemed so to make her seem slimmer and smoother.
"We are strangers," she said when she had once more captured her errand attention. "But Aunt Miranda and I have been invited to tea tomorrow and I don't like to disappoint her. She wouldn't go if I were away." Carol reserved tonight and she was looking forward to that tea with much more excitement than Miranda. After all, all Miranda hoped for was to find a crony who could play Canfield while she . . .
"Chuck it," Tony advised. "We're lots more amusing than a tea."
"I'd like to but we can't."
"You must have been invited to the Pignatelli's . . . they're the only people one doesn't chuck in Nice," Miranda Smith said.

He took her hand.

Of course they were not asking Carol where she was invited but she felt that she had to tell them after that.
"The Marquessa di Riccio has invited us," she said.
Mimi quashed her cigarette, delicately removed it from its holder and inserted another before she spoke. "I didn't know you knew the marquessa."
"I don't," Carol answered, detecting something she didn't understand in Mimi Holmquist's voice.
"Then you don't know Dickie?"
"No, I don't know anyone named Dickie. Who is he?" Carol asked innocently.
She felt that Mimi was choosing her words carefully. "Dickie is the marquessa's nephew, Prince di Giorgio. . . . Ricardo, better known as 'bonnie Prince Dickie.'"
"I think I've heard about him," Carol answered lightly. "A fastidious young man who does something . . . plays the violin?"
"Neither fatish nor violin-playing," Hilda said. "But he has other faults." She sighed.
Carol had found out nothing by her questioning but she had only a day to wait.
"You'll see him around. He's usually 'with our crowd,'" Tony said. "We're divided in our prejudices about Dickie. We'll be interested to know what you think of him."
"I'll be interested to meet him. You make him sound interesting," Carol picked up her cards. "I'll bid 3-Spades."
"It is interesting," Mimi said with unexpected heartiness as she studied her cards. She did not look at her husband who frowned slightly and Carol, sensitive to all of them, wished she had not mentioned the subject at all.
"It's only fair to warn you, child," Hilda Truman said a few minutes later. "That the combination of Dickie and a Riviera night is a potent one."
Carol's play, Hilda's brother spoke over Carol's shoulder and added: "Diana must have met much more than . . . effective men than Dickie."
"Contraction of debonaire," Tony said. "He is supposed to have a title—Prince di Giorgio."
"Tony, my lamb," Mimi put down her cards and looked sorrowfully at her husband in mock distress. "I've never known you to be so silly. I think we ought to go back to Paris, darling, if you're going to get that way."
"Pardon me, our trick I think," was all her husband said.
Carol took out dress after dress that next afternoon before she decided on a small print of deep blue, black and white. She wore a large hat of white straw with a band of deep blue velvet. White sandals and gloves completed her costume.
Miranda was regal in sheer black with ropes of the Paris-bought pearls twisted about her throat, a Reboux hat on her silvery hair.
The marquessa was charming, Carol thought, if quite unlike what she had expected. She spoke perfect English with a guttural accent. There was a dark moustache on her upper lip and her laces and jewels were dusty. She thought perhaps they might find Nice lonesome, she said. She herself loved Americans and when Ricardo had told her of their arrival she was anxious to welcome them.
"I am afraid that there has been a mistake . . ." Carol, driven by innate honesty felt compelled to say at that point. The words died on her lips. A shadow fell across the patio.
"Ricardo, my dear, your charming friends . . ." the marquessa said.
"Ricardo bowed low to Miranda and to Carol.
"You didn't tell me you were coming to Nice," he said reproachfully to Carol in that caressing voice she had not been able to forget. "I had to hear it from others."
"You haven't met my aunt," she said, presenting him and wondering what this surprising young man would do next.
"You must see the garden before the sun sets," he took her hand.
Carol arose feeling that she was swimming in his dark eyes.

An interviewer finds Boris Karloff one of the most unusual men in pictures or, for that matter, in any walk of life. The interview took place on the set for "The Ghoul," Karloff's latest thriller which is now playing at the Circle Theatre.

Karloff's first screen appearance was an extra in a Universal picture and when Columbia decided to make a film version of "The Criminal Code," Karloff played Lie murderer. Next came his big opportunity in "Frankenstein" and he followed with "The Mummy."

Although still at a rather tender age, Wendy Barrie has managed to see a good portion of the world in her lifetime.

The charming English actress who makes her American film debut in "Paramount's" "College Scandal," which comes today to the Cliftona Theatre, was born in Hong Kong, reared in Europe and is now in the United States under contract to Paramount.

The fact that Miss Barrie's father was a king's counsel in Hong Kong, China, accounts for her being born there. At the age of eleven she went to London with her parents and later received a finishing school education at Lausanne, Switzerland.

WRONG THAT TIME
A steward stood at the gangway of a big liner, and as he stood there he kept shouting for the benefit of the arriving passengers: "First class to the right! Second class to the left!"

A young woman stepped daintily aboard with a baby in her arms. As she hesitated before the steward he bent over her and said, in his chivalrous way: "First or second?"

"Oh!" said the girl, her face as red as a rose. "Oh, dear, neither—I'm only the nurse."

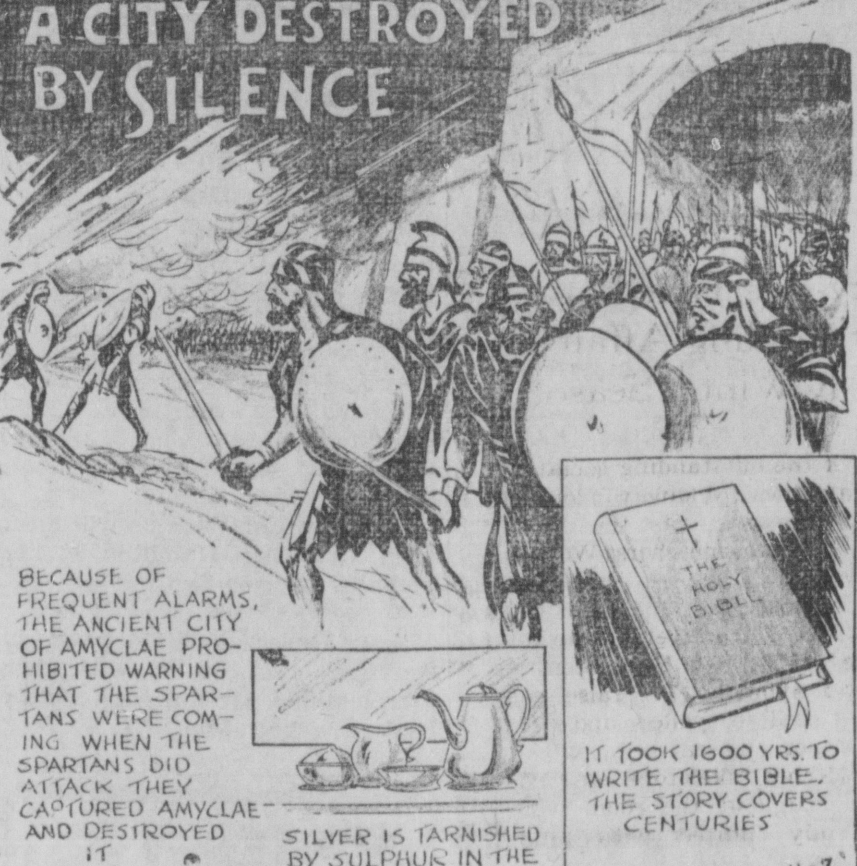

"THERE WAS A LITTLE GIRL"
There was a little girl, who had a little curl
Right in the middle of her forehead.
And when she was good, she was very, very good,
But when she was bad she was horrid.

She stood on her head, on her little trundle-bed,
With nobody by for to hinder;
She screamed and she squalled, she yelled and she bawled,
And drummed her little heels against the winder.

Her mother heard the noise, and thought it was the boys.
Playing in the empty attic,
She rushed upstairs, and caught her unawares,
And spanked her, most emphatic.

Physical Examination Best for Headache Victim

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
IN A RECENT article in a popular magazine, the author says, "The causes of headache are so numerous that it would require an entire book to name and explain them. The important thing is not to know all of them, but to understand that headache, constant or occasional, is Nature's signal to tell the person that there is something wrong going on in his body."
"If you have headache, stop eating till you are thoroughly hungry."
"Clean out your stomach and bowels."
"Have a physical examination made of your body."
"Have your heart examined and your blood pressure taken."
"Have your urine examined."
"Have your eyes examined and, if necessary, wear glasses."
"Avoid overwork and take sufficient rest."
"Do not neglect yourself and, above all, do not be satisfied to stop the headache for the time by taking large doses of 'headache medicines.'"
Not Always Danger Signal
I do not know that I entirely agree with this advice. I do not believe that a headache always is a danger signal, although I agree that it always should call for a thorough medical examination to try to find its cause. Most headaches occur in nervous individuals, and are simply a way of letting off steam.
During the series this week we have not mentioned much about migraine or sick headache. I have described that frequently before in this column. I believe it is responsible for over 50 per cent of what might be called "periodic headaches."
A patient wrote me the other day about migraine and referred to one of my articles and ended up by saying: "So what? What do I do about it?" That is another story, and I am inclined to believe that nothing we have at present can be depended upon to give permanent relief to all patients with migraine. However, a philosophic attitude toward it is about the best medicine.
NOTE
Several people have written me concerning the footstool which I described a few weeks ago. This is not at present manufactured by any company of which I know. It can easily be made, however, by any amateur carpenter by taking two pieces of wood 18 inches long and one-half inch thick, and dovetailing one into the other in the form of a T. I find also that my idea that this was a recent invention is untrue. Several people have written me that they have had footstools of this kind for several years, and I have even discovered they were made in New Jersey, during the Revolutionary war.

Country Club Members
Enjoy Dinner and Party

Forty-five Take Part in Outstanding Affair of Early Winter Season

One of the outstanding social affairs at the Pickaway Country club this season was the dinner party for club members Wednesday evening.

The enclosed porch of the club house was attractively decorated for the party with Halloween colors and symbols. A false ceiling was made of yellow and black crepe paper and cut outs of cats, owls, witches, skeletons etc. were hung throughout the room which was dimly lighted with pumpkin faces.

Vari-colored chrysanthemums centered the prettily appointed tables for the dinner at 6:30 o'clock for which covers were laid for forty-five.

Contract bridge was enjoyed following the dinner hour and favors for top scores were awarded Mrs. Joseph Noecker and Dr. G. D. Phillips.

There are No Safer Brakes Made

than the Super-Safety Brakes on the 1936 Ford V-8

No other car in America has the same basic design as the Ford V-8. And because of its unique design—the Ford car could use any type of braking system now in common use.

BUT, with the whole field to choose from, Ford stands by mechanically-operated, Super-Safety brakes as the safest, surest, most positive for the Ford V-8.

This is the type of braking system used on many of America's costliest cars and on most racing cars. And because of its unique chassis design, Ford can use it to better effect than any other automobile built today.

Then, for the brakes themselves, Ford has provided more effective square inches of braking surface (186) than is found in any other low-priced car. And big, 12-inch alloy-iron drums with special cooling fins to give maximum braking power under all road conditions. All in all, no safer brakes are made than you get with the 1936 Ford V-8.

And right through the Ford V-8 for 1936, from bumper to bumper, the same attention to your safety, comfort and peace-of-mind, characterizes the whole car. Ford uses a one-piece, welded-steel body because it is safer and quieter. Ford gives you Safety Glass in every window at no extra cost because Ford believes it is the manufacturer's duty to provide for maximum safety as part of the car's sales price.

Drive the Ford V-8. Notice how it "holds the road" on curves (you never have to "fight" a Ford around turns). Notice how dependably the brakes work on rough roads—on steep hills—or anywhere else. You can arrange to do this easily by calling:

FORD PERMANENT WHEELBASE

Radius rods [1] brace the front axle like a pair of giant arms. Radius rods and Torque-tube [2] give triple bracing to the rear axle. This means that the front and rear axles of a Ford car are always held equi-distant—in perfect alignment. On this permanent wheelbase any braking system now in common use could be used. Only with this Ford-type wheelbase, can mechanical, Super-Safety brakes be used to the fullest advantage.

FORD USES 4 INDEPENDENT BRAKE RODS

Four brake rods [3] of strong, tempered steel link the pressure of your foot on the pedal with the four big brake-drums on the wheels. They do this positively, surely, under all road conditions. Note especially that no one Ford brake has to depend on the other three. Failure of one—practically impossible—would leave three perfectly-operating brakes.

Tear out this chart and check it with the car you are driving now.

HOSTER, READON FIGHT FEATURES TONIGHT'S CARD

First of Four Bouts to Start at 8:30; Bill Pickens to Be Referee

A good-sized crowd is expected at the Armory, E. Franklin-st, this evening to witness Norman Aronson's first indoor fight card of the winter season. He expects to hold cards through the winter and the attendance tonight may have a lot to do with the caliber of fighters brought here.

The main go promises a lot of fireworks with Jackie Hoster, hard hitting Columbus lightweight, tangling with Danny Raedon of Dayton. Nothing is known of Raedon but he is reported a hard hitter, too, so the bout should be interesting. It will go for three rounds, or less.

The semi-roundup will bring Jack Barkens and Pug Fowler, slugging local bouts, together for another 3-round go. Both weigh 155.

Big Bill Pickens will referee the two principal fights and will also act as announcer.

In the preliminaries, Merle Thomas, 160, will meet George 'Ike' Davis, colored 160-pounder, and Eddie Bird, also colored, will tangle with Emerson Sayre. These boys weigh 120 pounds.

Lundy Ferguson will referee the prelims.

A onson is operating his cards this winter under the name, Twentieth Century Sportsman's Club of Ohio.

His score against Cincinnati, incidentally, was the first made against the Bearcats this season and helped the Elshops to upset the Buckeye conference champions, 13 to 12. Ohio Wesleyan plays Western Reserve Saturday at Delaware.

Ohio Rated Second

A national rating system has Ohio State second this week with Notre Dame taking the first spot—Princeton is third, California fourth, and Minnesota fifth.

Ten Predictions

A few predictions: Ohio State over Chicago; Yale over Brown; Reserve over Ohio Wesleyan; Stanford over Southern California; Princeton over Harvard; Notre Dame over Northwestern; in a great football game; Minnesota over Iowa; Michigan over Illinois; Alabama over Clemson; Pitt over Army.

Doesn't Take Long

Notre Dame beat Ohio with 40 seconds to go; Michigan State beat Temple with a minute and 40 seconds to go (they say the Aggies are using Green Bay pro plays); Syracuse beat Penn State with 1 minute and 20 seconds to play; Maryland won over Virginia in the same time; L. S. U. edged Auburn with 1 minute and 25 seconds to play; Kansas defeated Oklahoma with only 35 seconds in the watch * * * that's a lot of football games to be won in such a short time.

Grid fans who see the Wesleyan Reserve game will be watching several athletes good enough to be on anybody's team—Zeh, Ippolito, Burgwin and Kelker are touted as good enough for a lot of mention. The last two, Burgwin and Kelker, are negroes.

basis of comparative performances the Wildcats have little chance of whipping Notre Dame Saturday. Co-Captain Wally Cruick declared today, "We think we have a good chance to win." Co-Captain Al Lind added, "this is the year for us to crash through." The Wildcats went through a long defensive scrimmage against Notre Dame plays.

LAYTON WINS FIRST

CHICAGO, Nov. 7—(INS)—Johnny Layton's defense of his world's three cushion billiard championship had gotten off to an auspicious start today. The red-headed Sedalia, Mo., carpenter opened the tournament here last night by defeating Kinrey Matsuyama of Japan, the first of his nine challengers in the 14-day tourney, 50 to 35.

In today's matches Augie Kiechhefer of Chicago, will meet Allen Hall, St. Louis; Walker Cochran of San Francisco will play Otto Reisselt of Philadelphia; Willie Hoppe, New York, meets Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago, and Jay N. Bozeman of Vallejo, Cal., plays Tiff Denton of Kansas City.

76—Farms and Farmlands

LAND BUYERS

My Bargain farm for this week:—152 acres, located on good highway, three miles from church, schools, and markets. Fences good with few exceptions well tiled, red clay and black ground, of the very best quality, and the kind of land that is responsible for the large fortunes amassed by the early settlers of this community.

Residence—A very attractive, well arranged, comfortable country home, consisting of seven rooms, cellar, natural gas for heating, lighting, and cooking, on which the upkeep is inexpensive, and surrounded by fine large shade trees, on elegant blue grass lawn, giving the appearance of a little park. Has well built barns, implement sheds, scales and outbuildings of every description.

For the past 50 years and at the present time this farm has never been occupied by any other than the original owner or members of his immediate family, all of whom were artists in the agricultural profession. They knew what to do, and when to do it, and for that reason, together with the extraordinary quality of the soil, this farm has honestly earned the reputation of being one of the most outstanding and productive in the community.

This farm is rented for the ensuing year on cash rent basis, and the income that will be derived by the present owner for that year, will amount to more than three times the amount of interest, the purchase price of these premises would earn, if placed on certificate of deposit, in Ohio's leading financial institutions. When this farm is sold this rent contract automatically becomes the property of the purchaser.

If these statements are true why would you not consider this farm a good investment.

Millions of working men that have been idle for years, will be at work within the next few weeks at good substantial wages, and those men will buy the products of the farm, but if you do not have a farm, you can still be one of the beneficiaries of this movement.

Price—very reasonable. Terms cash or will loan from 5 to 9 thousand on sole security of these premises.

If this particular farm does not fill the bill I have plenty of others in most any locality in central Ohio.

Sunday's Epigrams Go Down in Nation History

(CHICAGO, Nov. 7—(INS)—Sizzling epigrams in home-language were the ammunition of Billy Sunday in his life-long battle against "rum and the devil."

Among the most startling flung from the pulpit by the famed evangelist, who died of a heart attack here last night, were:

"You will run all the way downtown from your house to renew your fire insurance if you have let it lapse a day. But you have waited twenty, thirty, forty, fifty years without taking out any fire insurance for your immortal soul against the fires of hell."

"Holding a dollar within an inch of a man's nose sometimes will make him stone blind to everything that is good.

"You can go to hell as fast in a Pierce Arrow as in a tin lizzie; as fast on Fifth Avenue as on the Bowery."

"The fellow that says he can drink or let it alone, I've noticed, never lets it alone."

"Whenever a girl gets too stuckup to marry a guy who has 140 acres and 100 red hogs because he doesn't know a tango from a load of hay, she's due to be an old maid or to hitch-up with some ten-dollar-week sissy."

PLANS FOR PARK THROWN ASIDE BY 'CITY DADS'

Committee Named to Confer With Industries for Help in Project

The city park project was given a setback in council last night and the city dads made their first move toward the construction of a sewage disposal plant, a project they declared far more important than a playground.

Vattier Courtwright, field engineer, reported he believed the park project listed with WPA would be approved as soon as the land was purchased and the city approved the expenditure of between $2,000 and $3,000 for material expenses. Under the blanket project listed for the playground the government would spend about $14,000 of which $2,000 would be material costs.

Sees Forced Plant Councilman C. O. Leist stated he believed a city disposal plant was far more important at this time than the park and it would be only a short time until the city will be forced to construct a plant.

Howard Fosnaugh, former Circleville resident now a WPA official in Columbus, spoke before council in a recessed session and introduced Allen Meyer, Columbus engineer who has designed a number of disposal plants in Franklin-co to be constructed as WPA projects.

Sewage plant projects have received speedy approval as WPA projects, councilmen were told, and it appeared plans would be made at once for a Circleville plant.

Frank Baker, president - pro tem, appointed Ben Gordon, William Reid and Daniel Ryan on a committee to visit the officials of the Container Corporation to learn if the company would cooperate with the city in the construction of the plant. Canning factories and dairies using the city sewer system for disposing of refuse from their plants many also be included in the program.

SURVEY URGES ORIENT SCHOOL FOR EPILEPTICS

Sherrill Advises Governor to Make Gallipolis Hospital for Feeble-Minded

COLUMBUS, Nov. 7—(INS)—The Ohio Government Survey committee today recommended to Governor Davey the establishment of a state division of mental hygiene in the welfare department.

"Ohio has sunk to a low ebb in its program for these defective groups," the survey group declared. "Under a proper program not more than one-tenth of the 133,000 feeble-minded persons in the state would need institutionalization."

The group urged that the state institution for feeble minded at Orient be made an institution for epileptics and that the state epileptic institution at Gallipolis used for care of feeble minded.

1—Psychiatric and child guidance clinics to prevent necessity of institutionalization;

2—Special local classes and local schools for feeble minded and retarded children;

3—State institutions serving as training schools as far as inmates are capable of training;

4—Development of the colony plan for feeble minded; and

5—Development of family or board home care.

"DOCTOR, should my family use Pasteurized Milk?"

Here is what these world-famous medical men say about it:

Follow the Advice of These Authorities and Your Family Doctor . . .

Buy Pasteurized Milk!

DR. E. V. McCOLLUM, JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY:

"Every city should enforce the pasteurization of its milk supply. The reasons for this are clear and accepted by all who are in a position as a result of scientific training to understand the underlying principles. I HAVE FOR YEARS INSISTED THAT EVERY CITY SHOULD HAVE ITS MILK SUPPLY PASTEURIZED AND UNDER CONDITIONS WHERE THE HEALTH OFFICER CAN EFFECTIVELY SUPERVISE THE PROCESS."

DR. M. J. ROSENAU, DEAN OF MEDICINE, HARVARD UNIVERSITY:

"Pasteurization is the simplest and cheapest method of avoiding dangers that may be present in raw milk. Pasteurization is a good form of sickness insurance for the consumer, and good business insurance for the producer."

DR. CHAS. H. MAYO, MAYO CLINIC, ROCHESTER, MINNESOTA:

"Everything should be done—clinical observation and examination of the cattle and PROPER PASTEURIZATION OF THE MILK. In fact money spent for such things is not expense, it is investment that will return dividends."

DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESON, COMMISSIONER OF HEALTH, CITY OF CHICAGO:

"Since the institution of an order in 1916 that all milk except certified be pasteurized, there has not been a single case of contagion traced to the milk supply, a record that speaks volumes for the EFFICIENCY OF PASTEURIZATION AS A PUBLIC MEASURE."

DR. LESLIE C. FRANK, OFFICE OF MILK INVESTIGATIONS, U. S. PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE:

"PASTEURIZATION PROPERLY DONE renders harmless or destroys all disease producing organisms known to be transmitted through milk to man, AND DOES NOT SIGNIFICANTLY IMPAIR OR ALTER THE FLAVOR AND FOOD VALUE OF MILK."

You Can Order From the Dairy Listed Below. Its Milk is Properly Pasteurized Under State Inspection.

Duffy Attacks Governor and Other Present Leaders in Shakeup Demand

"IN INCAPABLE HANDS"

Calls on Cincinnati Man to Announce Candidacy for 1936 Primary

COLUMBUS, Nov. 7.—(INS)—In the wake of Tuesday's Republican landslide in major municipal contests there arose today a new demand for new leadership of the Democratic party in Ohio, and developments of the past 24 hours convinced most observers that Charles Sawyer, Cincinnati, will oppose Gov. Martin L. Davey's renomination in 1936.

Sawyer, former lieutenant governor, who with William G. Pickrel, Dayton, ran against Davey in the 1934 Democratic primary, served notice that he is "giving careful consideration" to running again in 1936.

Duffy Opens Attack

Meanwhile, Herbert S. Duffy, Democratic nominee for attorney general last year, issued a sharply-worded statement calling for a "new deal" within the Democratic party in Ohio. Results of Tuesday's election, he declared, "clearly demonstrate that the leadership of our party, residing as it does in the present governor, Martin L. Davey, is in hopelessly inefficient and incapable hands."

Duffy charged that many responsible Democratic public officials were penalized in the recent municipal elections and in many instances defeated "because of their allegiance to that faith."

CHILlicothe's CHARTER LOSES

Defeated By 134 Votes; Fayette Beats Hospital

Chillicothe's effort to form a charter commission with eventual city manager form of government lost by only 134 votes. Dr. Ralph Holmes, president of the Good Government league, announced his organization would continue its efforts.

Chillicothe, Tuesday, elected its entire Democratic ticket for the first time in 30 years. Election of James Ford as mayor is a direct blow at Garrett Claypool and his county organization. Claypool built up Ford for senator, they had a break during the tenure of office and since that time have been like a couple of wet hens when the name of either is mentioned.

Over in Fayette-co, a move for a county hospital was defeated by the rural precincts. The city gave the hospital a 253 margin but the outlying communities didn't think so much of the plan. The local hospital was to have been a model.

Washington C. H. voted to operate under the city manager plan of government.

Lancaster defeated a $210,000 bond issue for a sewage disposal plant by a No. 3,013; Yes, 2,178 ballot.

Kingston passed a bond issue for construction of a storm sewer in conjunction with PWA help.

A. B. Vlerobome, former Pickaway couintian, was re-elected to the Lancaster board of education.

Woman, 42, Who Tried to Drown Two Girls, Jailed

Mrs. Spurgeon Grief-Stricken; Children Saved By Action of Workmen; Unrequited Love is Blamed

COLUMBUS, Nov. 7.—Grief stricken over her failure to end her life, Mrs. Merrill Spurgeon, 42-year-old Portsmouth widow, languished in county jail here today while authorities debated over what charges to file against her.

Mrs. Spurgeon, officials said, was frustrated in her effort to drown herself, her 10-year-old daughter and the daughter of a former suitor, over whom she had brooded, when carpenters were attracted by screams of the two children at Big Walnut creek, south of here.

Held in County Jail
Prosecutor Donald J. Hoskins, Sheriff Ross J. Anderson and city police officials held her in county jail today while they debated what charges to file.

Her daughter, Ruth, 10, and Marilyn Price, daughter of the man she loved, were safe with relatives.

Screams of the girls as the widow forced them to walk with her into Big Walnut creek, south of here, attracted the attention of men working nearby. They thwarted Mrs. Spurgeon's death plans.

Mrs. Spurgeon's husband died four years ago. Her romance with R. M. Price, local salesman and father of Marilyn, was broken off eight months ago, she told deputy sheriffs. He has since married.

Called at School
Driving here from Portsmouth with her own daughter, Mrs. Spurgeon called at school for Marilyn, telling the principal the little girl's aunt was seriously ill.

Ruth said her mother then drove out of town at high speed until she came to the Big Walnut Creek bridge. Here, deputies quoted the widow as saying, she decided "this would be a good chance to end it all."

Her own daughter wriggled free from Mrs. Spurgeon in the creek, but she had twice ducked Marilyn when workmen, hearing the children's screams, interrupted her plans.

Mrs. Spurgeon was taken to the county jail. No charges have been filed pending an investigation by Sheriff Ross Anderson.

The truck was turned over. Mr. O'Neal was not hurt but Mr. Chambers suffered a number of bruises. His grandson, riding with him, was not injured.

HANNAN TO FACE FAIRFIELD JUDGE ON 15 CHARGES

Kelly R. Hannan, former local automobile dealer, will face Judge Frank M. Acton in Lancaster Saturday morning to plead to grand jury indictments in 15 check charges. Hannan, who left for parts unknown last June, surrendered to Fairfield-co police Monday.

The total amount involved in the case is $6,248.73. The Colonial Finance Co. of Lima is seeking to recover on two checks, one for $3,480 and the other for $2,260. The finance company charges Hannan and his wife left to avoid service of summons and absconded to defraud creditors. The company started receivership action which led to Hannan's business being sold.

KELLOGG PLANT BOOSTS SALARY, REDUCE HOURS

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Nov. 7.—(INS)—W. K. Kellogg sprung a surprise on employees of his plant today, announcing an average wage increase of 12 1/2 per cent for all male workers on a six-hour day working basis.

At the same time, the manufacturer, who established the 6-hour day five years, urged the ration's employers to try the shorter working day as a means of operating their plants more successfully and solving the unemployment problem.

Under the new wage scale, retroactive to Oct. 28, the minimum pay for janitors and unskilled workers is $27 weekly for a 6-hour day, and salaries in the higher bracket are raised proportionately, Kellogg announced.

HITLER REJECTS LEAGUE DEMAND FOR 'SANCTIONS'

Declares Strict Adherence to Neutrality Pledge to Be Observed By Germany

HURTS PEACE CHANCES

Italy's Neighbors Begin to Save Foodstuffs Expecting Higher Prices

(Copyright, 1935, by International News Service)

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—(INS)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler flatly though indirectly today rejected the League of Nations plea for Germany's active participation in sanctions against Italy.

The rejection was made in a negative official announcement denying Germany had answered the League's plea. It had been announced in Geneva Germany had agreed to aid sanctions.

Will Not Answer

This Geneva announcement was termed in high quarters as "demarcation." International News Service was informed Germany not only has not answered the League's sanctions memorandum—similar to one sent to the United States and other non-member states—but has no intention of doing so in the future.

While reasserting that the German embargo on the export of undisguised war materials will continue high quarters informed International News Service that Germany is unwilling to join in sanctions against Italy on the ground that any active participation would be tantamount to abandonment of the strict neutrality policy to which Germany has adhered thus far.

Looking for Boom

It was declared that neighboring countries, primarily Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia, and Austria, already are hoarding the expectation of a boom in Italian prices and forced purchases, thus directly pinching German imports of food and raw material and provoking a "serious situation."

Sawdust Trail Ends

Rev. "Billy" Sunday

NOTED SPEAKER STRICKEN AT 72

Became Converted While Walkin from Saloon

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—(INS)—"Billy" Sunday, "The Apostle of the Sawdust Trail," is dead.

The picturesque, courageous Rev. William Ashley Sunday died of a heart attack at the home of his wife's brother, William J. Thompson, here last night. He would have been 73 years old Nov. 19.

The world-famed evangelist had been in ill health since February.

HERE FIVE YEARS AGO

Mr. Sunday's last visit to Circleville was about five years ago. He preached at that time in the Presbyterian church. During his career he appeared here several times.

1933, when he suffered a heart attack while preaching in Des Moines, but had remained more or less active until last Tuesday evening when he went to bed complaining of "pains."

At Home With Family
Last night, however, he felt well enough to have dinner with his wife and the Thompsons. He chatted with them for a while, but at eight o'clock retired to his room to "rest a bit."

He had been gone but a few minutes when his wife heard him cry out. Hastening to his side, she found him suffering intensely. "I feel so dizzy," he told his wife, Mrs. Helen "Ma" Sunday. Then he died.

"I'm glad it came that way," she said today. "Billy always used to pray, 'Oh Lord, when I have to go please make it quick.'"

Funeral arrangements were held in abeyance pending arrival of their two sons, William A. Jr., and Paul T. Sunday, enroute here from Los Angeles.

Two other children, Mrs. Helen Miller and Mrs. Helen Miller.

ARRANGES MEETING TO CANVASS ALL DISPUTED ELECTION BALLOTS

If Tie Still Exists, Secretary of State Says Election Board Shall Cast Lot to Settle Deadlock Over Election of City Mayor

The board of elections announced today that it will open envelopes containing disputed ballots on the Tuesday election sometime Friday probably in the common pleas court room in an effort to settle the tie which exists in the mayor's race. Mayor W. B. Cady and Will J. Graham, Democrat and Republican respectively, are deadlocks with 1,375 votes each.

The hour for the meeting has not been determined but Harry Weil, deputy clerk of the board, declared that interested persons will be permitted to attend the meeting.

Not Official Yet

At the time the various precincts count their votes all disputed ballots are placed in envelopes.

PUBLISH TOWNSHIP LIST

A complete list of all township trustees and school board members will be published in Friday's Herald.

opes and sealed. They are put aside and kept to settle ties or other disputes. Secretary of State George S. Myers announced today that the official count will not be known until all disputed ballots have been examined and either counted or discarded.

The tie may be broken in this manner with board of election members to pass their judgment on the eligibility of the ballots.

In case the ballot exists, Mr. Myers pointed out, the election board will decide the outcome by a lot whether or not the candidates desire such action. "That is the law," Mr. Myers said, "and the board will follow the law."

Mayor Cady, Wednesday declared he was against deciding the question by lot.

Benefit of Public
"Elections" Mr. Myers went on "are for the benefit of the public and good government and are not operated for the benefit of candidates. The board will follow its own god judgment in settling this or any other disputes."

After the coin is tossed the person losing can demand a recount in any or all precincts providing he posts his bond, the secretary of state pointed out.

SEEK TO WIDEN COURT STREET

North End Work Needed; to Meet State Officials

The service director and engineer were instructed by council Wednesday night to meet with state highway officials and learn what part the department would take in the widening of Court-st from the bend, north of Pleasant-st, to the corporation line.

WPA officials explained the reconstruction work was started at the south end so the proposed street widening could be worked out. They believed it would be only a few years until the widening would be demanded and it would be foolish to rebuild the street at its present width if the widening program could be worked out at this time. The street should be approximately nine feet wider, council was told.

Many councilmen believed since the street was now a state highway, the highway department should obtain the right of way for the improvement.

Writes Lima Editor He Has Made No Decision; Plans Two Addresses

LIMA, Nov. 7.—(INS.) Charles Sawyer, Cincinnati, former lieutenant governor, announced today he is still a potential gubernatorial candidate in 1936 despite rumors that he will not oppose Gov. Martin L. Harvey for re-election.

In a letter to Earl R. Leach, editor of The Lima News, Sawyer today declared "I have not yet made a decision."

"This will serve as an answer to suggestions that I have decided not to run," he declared. "You may tell anyone inquiring of you that I have made no such decision and that I am still giving the matter careful consideration."

Sawyer said he has received thousands of letters similar to a query sent him by Leach, who stated: "I am exceedingly anxious that you should run, and I know it to be the sentiment of thousands of other Democrats throughout the state."

Meanwhile Sawyer announced two speaking engagements next week. He will speak over radio station WLW, Cincinnati, at 7:30 p. m. Sunday and next Thursday noon will address the Akron Kiwanis club, discussing "The Forgotten Man—The Taxpayer."

Bryan Custer, deputy U. S. marshal, was appointed chief of the patrol unit whose duty it will be to guard property, protect life and in other ways assist the civil authorities. His aides will be Peter Johnson of Ashville, Harry Timmons, Ralph Wood and John Ryan.

Dr. Harry Jackson was named chief of the medical unit. This group will direct first aid work and will have charge of injured. Dr. Jackson will be aided by Dr. R. S. Hosler of Ashville, Dr. Lloyd Jones, Dr. E. S. Shane, and Dr. A. W. Heiman.

The transportation unit will be in charge of Adrian Yates. He will have charge of moving the workers and supplies should the Legion be called out by an emergency. His aides will be George Hock of Ashville, James Stout, George Burns and Ray Delong.

Miss Anna Shea, president of the auxiliary, will be in charge of the supply unit whose duty should consist of feeding workers and victims and providing shelter and clothing. On her committees are Mrs. E. S. Thacher, Mrs. Lawrence Goeller and Mrs. Harry Jackson.

Rightmire Completes 10 Years as OSU President

GEORGE W. RIGHTMIRE
PRESIDENT OF OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

COLUMBUS, Nov. 7.—George W. Rightmire this week completed 10 years as president of Ohio State university, and the largest student body in the history of the school is helping to celebrate the anniversary.

President Rightmire's achievements are all the more notable, because they have come in his home state—proving once again that a prophet can win honors in his home country.

He was born in a little charcoal furnace town of Lawrence, Mo., and taught country schools near Portsmouth to earn funds for his college education. Coming to Ohio State as a student in 1889, he has been closely associated with the university almost continuously since that time. Scores of Pickaway-co young people have come under his influence in these years and have the highest regard for him.

In his student days the southern Ohio lad was noted as an athlete particularly in football and track, and later he became Ohio State's graduate manager of athletics. In 1912, as president of the athletic board he conducted the campaign to secure admission of Ohio State to the Western Conference.

When President William O'Neale Thompson resigned in 1925, the board of trustees called upon Professor Rightmire of the law college to become acting president. During the next few months the board painstakingly studied the qualifications of 40 leading U. S. educators. In the end they decided that the best of all was already on the job, and the word "acting" disappeared from Mr. Rightmire's title.

The new president started immediately on a program of "personalizing" education—bringing closer relationships between student and teacher in the nation's sixth largest university. He succeeded to a marked degree. Another achievement of his regime has been the opening of cooperative dormitories, to bring university training within the reach of Ohio students who could not otherwise afford it.

PROPOSED LAW NOT TO AFFECT CAREFUL DRIVER

West Declares Proposed License Law Only to Remove Reckless Driver

COLUMBUS, Nov. 7.—The careful Ohio motorist need have no fear of the Drivers' license law now awaiting passage in the general assembly, Frank West, registrar of motor vehicles, pointed out today.

The law however, will be an effective means of removing the reckless and drunken driver from the highways.

Under the proposed law, the motorist will have to be examined by the Registrar or one of his deputies as to his knowledge of motor vehicle laws, his ability to understand traffic signs and warnings, a satisfactory demonstration as to his driving capacity, and a test of his eyesight.

On the payment of 25 cents for a fee and a 15 cent charge to the deputy registrars, the applicant, if he passed the test, will receive his license. The license card will carry name and description.

But keeping the license will be a different matter. Under the law, the judge of any court will have the authority to suspend or revoke the license of any persons convicted of manslaughter in connection with a traffic fatality, using a false name in applying for a license, driving a vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors or drugs, or convicted of any crime punishable as a felony while using an automobile.

Even though a driver's license may not necessarily be suspended if he is arrested for speeding, reckless driving or other offense, the facts of such arrest will be noted on his license card and also on the duplicate card to be kept in the registry of motor vehicles. These facts will be used against the driver if he is arrested for a second offense.

The new law thus puts a premium upon careful driving while it seeks to curb reckless operation of automobiles and remove the "drunken" driver from the roads. As in other states, where drivers' license laws have been found to be extremely useful, suspension of licenses will be made for certain periods of time, depending upon the degree of the offense, and complete revocation will follow consistent violation of traffic laws.

OLD-TIMER

SALINA, Kan.—What is probably the oldest time-piece in this section of the county is owned by C. D. Smith of Salina. The clock, operated by means of wooden wheels, is 215 years old and still functions.

We may not be at war, but two of the items to come before congress will be a 3-million-dollar bonus bill for the last one and a 900 million dollar appropriation for the next one.

Corn Husking Contest To be Broadcast Friday

Totten to Be on Microphone; Secretary of Agriculture Scheduled for Talk; Levitski Sunday Feature

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—When the National Cornhusking Contest, popularly called the "corn belt derby," gets under way on a farm near Newton, Fountain-co, Indiana, on Friday, Nov. 8, the National Farm and Home Hour microphone will be on the scene to relay a running account of the event to a nationwide NBC-WJZ network at 12:30 p. m., E. S. T.

Hal Totten, veteran NBC sports and world series announcer, and Everett Mitchell, master-of-ceremonies on the Farm and Home Hour, will collaborate in describing this unusual farm sports event.

T's newest of short wave radio broadcasting equipment will be employed in bringing the program direct from the field to the NBC network. Totten will broadcast his observations of the contest from a position atop the NBC mobile transmitter which will follow the huskers down the long rows of corn. Mitchell will present his views of the match and interview prominent visitors from a booth erected at one end of the field. A two-way telephone system will be installed for the two announcers.

A feature of the Farm and Home Hour program will be a brief talk by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, the man who originated cornhusking contests in Iowa in 1924. Secretary Wallace will make a special trip from Washington to attend the contest.

Mischa Levitski, famous Russo-American pianist, will be guest soloist of the Sunday Evening Hour program of Sunday, Nov. 10, when it is broadcast from 9 to 10 p. m. over CBS.

Mr. Levitski will contribute two selections to the program, which features also the music of the symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Victor Kolar. In the first half of the concert, he will offer the brilliant "Allegro Affettuoso" movement of Schumann's Concerto in A Major with the orchestra. In his second appearance, he will play Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6." The orchestra also will play a Mendelssohn composition, the famous overture to "Ruy Blas"; and in addition will be heard in Granger's "Colonial Song," as well as Moszkowski's striking "Mala-guena," and Grieg's "The Last Spring." The orchestra and chorus together will present Gounod's "The Soldier's Chorus," from "Faust," while the chorus will be heard with organ in De Koven's musical setting from the Kipling poem, "The Reckless," offered in commemoration of Armistice Day.

Became Converted While Walking from Saloon

P. Haines of Sturgis, Mich., and George M. Sunday of Chicago, died two years ago.

Sunday was born at Ames, Iowa, Nov. 19, 1862.

He quit Northwestern university in 1882 to play professional baseball at Marshalltown, Iowa. Two years later Adrian "Cap" Anson signed him to play for the old Chicago White Stockings.

It was while playing baseball, in 1886, that Sunday experienced conversion. With some other teammates he came out a saloon, stopped to listen to an evangelist preaching in an open lot. Convinced of the truth the man spoke, Sunday was converted and began his career of soul-saving.

PROVED BY 2 GENERATIONS

L. C. SHERBURNE extends sincere thanks to the voters of Circleville.

"Billy's" sermons as he waged his campaign against rum and the devil, caught the public fancy. He became the country's greatest showman, a master of crowd psychology.

But "Billy" refused to commercialize on his religion. In 1931

he refused an offer of $1,000,000 to go into the movies, declaring: "God almighty gave me my reputation. It's not for sale."

His preaching was simple and sincere. Despite the hyper-dramatism with which he presented his faith, he insisted he was "as com-

Paul T. Sunday, enroute here from mon as an old shoe," and though the homely language and shirt-sleeved vigor with which he persuaded thousands of listeners to "come up the sawdust trail" shocked staid and stolid clergy, men, "Billy" was content to rest on his record of conversions. He preached his message a Methodist church in Ind., last Oct. 27, when 30 and 40 converts were made. He was so successful that he was tar to wrestle with "the devil."

MADE IN RUSSIA

THERE has been very little weather and almost no talk about it this season, a state of affairs contrary to the adages as well as to conditions in the recent years. But now, at last, business is picking up, and the prospects for illuminating discussion and perhaps some first-class weather are immense.

The reason is profound and expert confirmation of a belief long held in a haphazard sort of way. Always it has been more or less generally understood that much of the weather in the United States was manufactured beyond its borders. Winter storms sweep across our continent from the Pacific to the Atlantic. Hurricanes which blast the Florida coast are visitors from the tropics.

These things we have known, but now the field is broadened. We shall look in the future for our winter storms (in their infancy, at any rate) to Asia. Returning from a weather conference in the land of the Soviets, Willis R. Gregg, weather bureau man, says soon we may have weather reports from far-flung Russian outposts. It is his expert opinion that much American weather is a Siberian product, entering the United States after crossing Alaska and the Canadian Northwest—and probably getting colder all along the way.

Most persons heretofore have given little thought to the possibility that perhaps the winter storm whose blustering winds pile high the drifts is a Siberian importation. But they will not be surprised when told that such may be the case. They can readily in imagination picture the clouds as bearing the label "Made in Siberia." Mr. Gregg says that with Siberian weather news the American forecasts may be improved. But he offers no suggestions for the improvement of Siberian weather. It merely bears out an old observation that everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it.

American genius, moans a critic, has been directed mainly toward profit making. Well, hasn't it required genius during the past five years?

Even in the midst of war's excitements and alarms we must pause a moment to admire Haile Selassie's permanent wave.

The world has never been so full of menaces. Hurricanes menace Florida. War menaces Europe. Earthquakes menace Montana and before long the bonus will menace the treasury.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

With millions of men jobless, there are not enough trained men to go around. That is the plaint of industry.

The reason is clear—men were not trained during the depression.

Furthermore, trained men learned during the depression and still are learning during recovery that there is no real security even for trained men.

Employers now are organizing in various industrial centers to train men.

But, as organized workers point out, there is no assurance that jobs will be secure, or that earnings will keep pace with living costs.

WHAT COULD BE DONE

A suggestion has been made by workers (not by employers) that the government could operate plants to fulfill the wants of the needy during periods of slack. (The needy require just as much to live then as during prosperous periods.) Thus men—especially young men out of school—would be taught trades.

If, instead of the haphazard re-education of the government had put one-half of the sum into such factories, training men and produc-

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WHAT'S BACK OF WASHINGTON REPORTS ON SENSATIONAL CABINET SHAKEUP

WASHINGTON—For more than a month political Washington has been agitated by insistent predictions of a sensational Cabinet shakeup.

Some reports have it that the President plans a drastic revamping of his official family that will eliminate most of its members. Other reports number the casualties at only two or three—which is much more likely.

Reported Cabinet changes are an old Washington phenomenon. Sometimes they occur, most often they don't. The Roosevelt regime has been no exception. Rumors of this or that Cabinet member getting out have popped up with almost clock-like regularity.

However, there is more behind the present report than mere wise-thinking. The inside fact is that the President would like to clean house in his Cabinet.

He has given the matter considerable thought and has talked about it to a few of his closest intimates. During his Hyde Park stay preceding the trans-continental trip, Roosevelt told one bosom associate that when he returned to Washington he would "tighten up our inner lines."

WHEN—?

Despite the innermost circle there is a sharp difference of opinion. One side wants "The Skipper" to wield the axe without delay. They argue that lack of administrative effectiveness and efficiency is one of the major weaknesses of the New Deal and the sooner it is strengthened the better. Cleaning house before the campaign would rob the Republicans of a telling argument.

The other side is advising delay until after election. They do not deny the need of tightening the inner lines, but claim that an early house-cleaning might have a bad political reaction.

So far there is no definite indication of which way the President will move.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The NRA's hope for a survey of the steel industry with the cooperation of the manufacturers went glimmering the other day when the American Iron and Steel Institute withdrew its previous offer to collaborate on the ground that it could not afford the expense. . . . The latest addition to Government agents is "R-men", a designation given by South Dakotans to Work-Reliefers, employed in keeping rabbits out of newly planted forest preserves. The rabbits create havoc with young saplings. . . . So rapid is the progress being made in authorities now believe a regular trans-oceanic airmail transportation that postal Atlantic service, via the southern route, Bermuda and the Azores, will be established next Spring.

We hope that Mahatma Gandhi will pardon our seeming lack of interest, but in the rush of world affairs we have lost trace of his doings, though we hope he is eating regularly every day.

In the event that he really wants to escape excessive taxation, Mr. Hearst might consider moving his California ranch to the North Pole.

The Romance Racket
 MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER 46

"DO YOU suppose she has made a mistake?" Miranda asked anxiously. The invitation sounded exciting to her.

"I am sure she has," Carol said slowly, as her excitement died with the realization that it couldn't be he since he didn't even know her name. "Well, it's quite possible that you might have met him in Paris," Miranda stretched her imagination and stressed the word "might."

"You're a faker," Carol said, plucking her lightly on the cheek. "You want to accept this invitation so you are willing to pretend?" "It can't do any harm," Miranda said, thinking of the maze of untruths in which they were already involved. "And I should like to meet the marquessa. She must be nearly my own age to have a 'grown' nephew. Perhaps she knows how to play Canfield."

"Perhaps she does," Carol said. "And it will be worth the trip to see. Of course, we must explain that we did not meet her nephew."

That afternoon Carol played tennis with her new-found friends. She presented them to Miranda on the terrace after dinner, and when Miranda had gone to bed, she played Canfield with them on the terrace off their rooms.

"Picknicking is more fun than anything else to do in Nice," Mimi told her. "We're going off to a very special beach tomorrow. Wear your oldest rags. We'll be gone until dinner time and tomorrow night we're going down to the Casino."

How different Mimi looked from the tomboy on the beach. Dead-white lace set off the rosy tan of her skin, the sheen of her black hair. Scarlet lips and nails, the green of her long jade cigarette holder, made sharp accents against the black and white. Carol was absorbed in her study of the sophisticated hostess and lost the thread of the conversation.

"We'll meet on the beach. The servants will have everything packed and we're taking Luisa along to cook for us. Do you suppose your aunt would like to join us?"

"Oh, I'm sorry," Carol answered. "I would love to do it but can't. We do it another day. I mean, won't you ask me on your next picnic?"

Tony answered for her: "Bet we will. We wouldn't think of letting a good tennis player like you get away from us. Luisa has been bemoaning the fact that he had to play with Hilda and she always beats him."

"Thought you were a stranger here. Come along. You can do your sightseeing another day," Hilda Truman came wandering through the door. Carol thought she would never get over her surprise at the way these smart people assumed sophisticated personalities when night came on and they donned their Paris gowns. Hilda Truman wore gleaming jade satin and looked as though it had been poured on her.

Carol wondered if she seemed to make her seem slender and smoother.

"We are strangers," she said when she had once more captured her erstwhile attention. "But Mrs. Hilda Truman and I have known each other for years. I don't like to disappear on her. She should go with us. I was away. Carol reserved the impression that she was looking forward to tea with much more excitement than Miranda. After all, she and Miranda hoped for was to find a game. Who could play Canfield while she . . .

"Chuck it," Tony said. "We're lots more amusing than that. I'd like to but we can't." "You must have been invited to the Pignatelli's . . . they're the only people one doesn't chuck in Nice," Mimi said.

Of course they were not asking Carol where she was invited but she felt that she had to tell them after that.

"The Marquessa di Riccio has invited us," she said.

Mimi quashed her cigarette, delicately removed it from its holder and inserted another before she spoke.

"I didn't know you knew the marquessa?"

"I don't," Carol answered, detecting something she didn't understand in Mimi Holmquist's voice.

"Then you don't know Dickie?"

"No, I don't know anyone named Dickie. Who is he?" Carol asked innocently.

She felt that Mimi was choosing her words carefully. "Dickie is the marquessa's nephew, Prince di Giorgio . . . Ricardo, better known as Prince Dickie."

"I think I've heard about him," Carol answered lightly. "A fatish young man who does something . . . plays the violin?"

"Neither fatish nor violin-playing," Hilda said. "But he has other faults." She sighed.

Carol had found out nothing by her questioning but she had only a day to wait.

"I'll see him around. He's usually with our crowd," Tony said. "We're divided in our prejudices about Dickie. We'll be interested to know what you think of him."

"I'm interested to meet him. You make him sound interesting," Carol looked up her cards. "I'll bid 300."

"Interesting," Mimi said with unquestioned heartiness as she studied her cards. She did not look at her husband who frowned slightly and Carol, sensitive to all of them, wished she had not mentioned the subject at all.

"It's only fair to warn you, child," Hilda Truman said a few minutes later. "The combination of Dickie and a Riviera night is a potent one."

"Your play, Hilda," her brother spoke over Carol's shoulder and added: "Diana must have met much more than . . . effective men than Dickie."

"Contraction of debonair," Tony said. "He is supposed to have a title—Prince di Giorgio."

"Tony, my lamb," Mimi put down her cards and looked sorrowfully at her husband in mock distress. "I've never known you to be catty. I think we ought to go back to Paris, darling, if you're going to get that way."

"Pardon me, our trick I think," was all her husband said.

Carol took out dress after dress that next afternoon before she decided on a small print of deep blue, black and white. She wore a large hat of white straw with a band of deep blue velvet. White sandals and gloves completed her costume.

Miranda was regal in sheer black with ropes of the Paris-bought pearls twisted about her throat, a Reboux hat on her silvery hair.

The marquessa was charming, Carol thought, if quite unlike what she had expected. She spoke perfect English with a guttural accent. There was a dark mustache on her upper lip and her laces and jewels were dusty.

She thought perhaps they might find Nice lonesome, she said. She herself loved Americans and when Ricardo had told her of their arrival she was anxious to welcome them.

"I am afraid that there has been a mistake . . .," Carol, driven by innate honesty felt compelled to say at that point. The words died on her lips.

A shadow fell across the patio. "Ricardo, my dear, your charming friends . . ." the marquessa said.

"Ricardo bowed low to Miranda and to Carol."

"You didn't tell me you were coming to Nice," he said reproachfully to Carol in that caressing voice she had not been able to forget. "I had to hear it from others."

"You haven't met my aunt," she said, presenting him and wondering what this surprising young man would do next.

"You must see the garden before the sun sets," He took her hand. Carol arose feeling that she was swimming in his dark eyes.

Although still at a rather tender age, Wendy Barrie has managed to see a good portion of the world in her lifetime.

The charming English actress who makes her American film debut in Paramount's "College Scandal," which comes today to the Cliftona Theatre, was born in Hong Kong, reared in Europe and is now in the United States under contract to Paramount.

The fact that Miss Barrie's father was a king's counsel in Hong Kong, China, accounts for her being born there. At the age of eleven she went to London with her parents and later received a finishing school education at Lausanne, Switzerland.

Physical Examination Best for Headache Victim

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN A RECENT article in a popular magazine, the author says, "The causes of headache are so numerous that it would require an entire book to name and explain them. The important thing is not to know all of them, but to understand that headache, constant or occasional, is Nature's signal to tell the person that there is something wrong going on in his body."

"If you have headache, stop eating till you are thoroughly hungry. Clean out your stomach and bowels."

"Have a physical examination made of your body. Have your heart examined and your blood pressure taken. Have your urine examined."

"Have your eyes examined and, if necessary, wear glasses. Avoid overwork and take sufficient rest."

"Do not neglect yourself and, above all, do not be satisfied to stop the headache for the time by taking large doses of 'headache medicines'."

Not Always Danger Signal

I do not think that I entirely agree with this advice. I do not believe that a headache always is a danger signal, although I agree that it always should call for a thorough medical examination to try to find its cause. Most headaches occur in nervous individuals, and are simply a way of letting off steam.

During the series this week we have not mentioned much about migraine or sick headache. I have described that frequently before in this column. I believe it is responsible for over 50 per cent of what might be called "periodic headaches."

A patient wrote me the other day about migraine and referred to one of my articles and ended up by saying: "So what? What do I do about it?" That is another story, and I am inclined to believe that nothing we have at present can be depended upon to give permanent relief to all patients with migraine. However, a philosophic attitude toward it is about the best medicine.

NOTE

Several people have written me concerning the footstool which I described a few weeks ago. This is not at present manufactured by any company of which I know. It can easily be made, however, by any amateur carpenter by taking two pieces of wood 18 inches long and one-half inch thick, and dovetailing one into the other in the form of a T. I find also that my idea that this was a recent invention is untrue. Several people have written me that they have had footstools of this kind for several years, and I have even discovered they were made in New Jersey, during the Revolutionary war.

There are No Safer Brakes Made

than the Super-Safety Brakes on the 1936 Ford V-8

No other car in America has the same basic design as the Ford V-8. And because of its unique design—the Ford car could use any type of braking system now in common use.

BUT, with the whole field to choose from, Ford stands by mechanically-operated, Super-Safety brakes as the safest, surest, most positive for the Ford V-8.

This is the type of braking system used on many of America's costliest cars and on most racing cars. And because of its unique chassis design, Ford can use it to better effect than any other automobile built today.

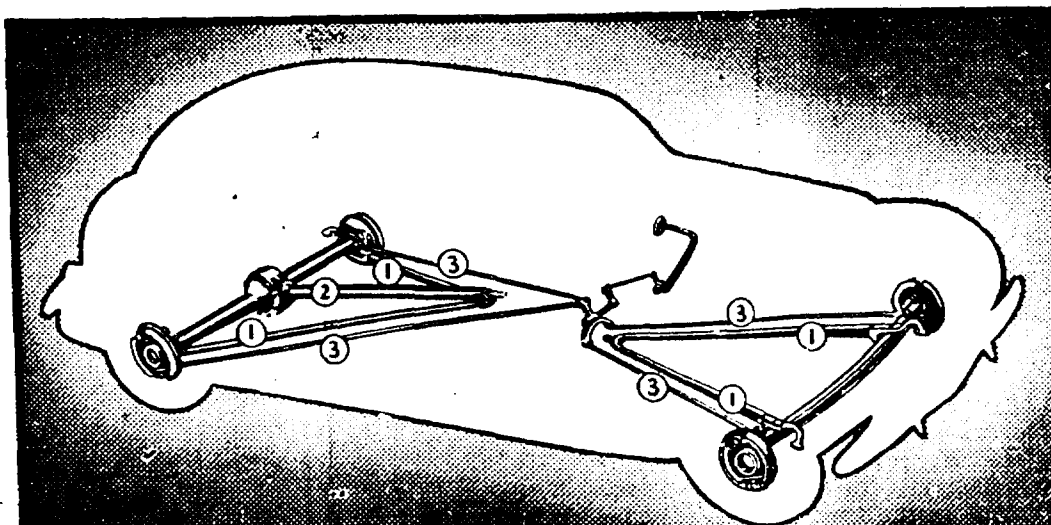

Then, for the brakes themselves, Ford has provided more effective square inches of braking surface (186) than is found in any other low-priced car. And big, 12-inch alloy-iron drums with special cooling fins to give maximum braking power under all road conditions. All in all, no safer brakes are made than you get with the 1936 Ford V-8.

And right through the Ford V-8 for 1936, from bumper to bumper, the same attention to

FORD PERMANENT WHEELBASE

Radius rods (1) brace the front axle like a pair of giant arms. Radius rods and Torque-tube (2) give triple bracing to the rear axle. This means that the front and rear axles of a Ford car are always held equi-distant—in perfect alignment. On this permanent wheelbase any braking system now in common use could be used. Only with this Ford-type wheelbase, can mechanical, Super-Safety brakes be used to the fullest advantage.

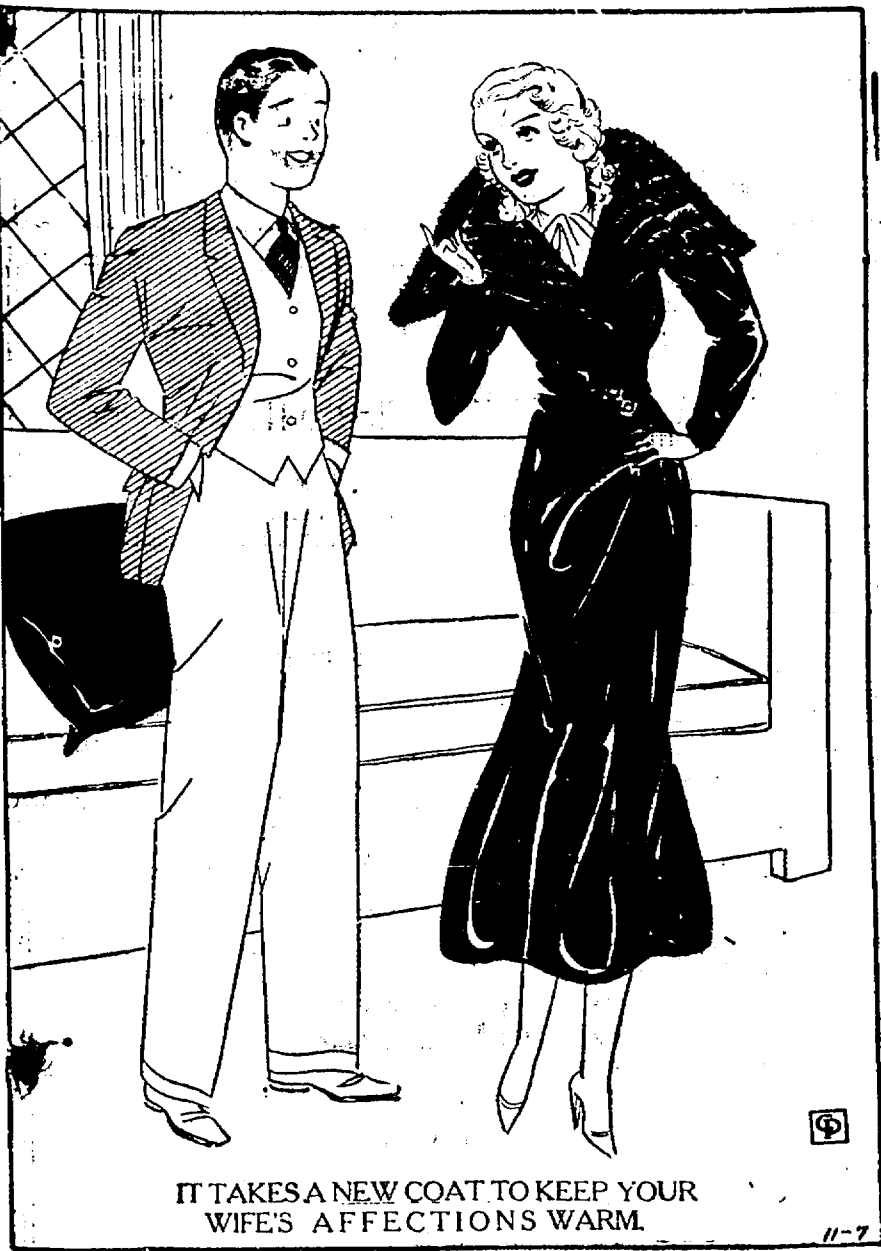

FORD USES 4 INDEPENDENT BRAKE RODS

Four brake rods (3) of strong, tempered steel link the pressure of your foot on the pedal with the four big brake-drums on the wheels. They do this positively, surely, under all road conditions. Note especially that no one Ford brake has to depend on the other three. Failure of one—practically impossible—would leave three perfectly-operating brakes.

Sunday's Epigrams Go Down in Nation History

CHICAGO, Nov. 7—(INS)—Sizzling epigrams in home-ly language were the ammunition of Billy Sunday in his life-long battle against "rum and the devil."

Among the most startling flung from the pulpit by the famed evangelist, who died of a heart attack here last night, were:

"You will run all the way downtown from your house to renew your fire insurance if you have let it lapse a day. But you have waited twenty, thirty, forty, fifty years without taking out any fire insurance for your immortal soul against the fires of hell."

"Holding a dollar within an inch of a man's nose sometimes will make him stone blind to everything that is good."

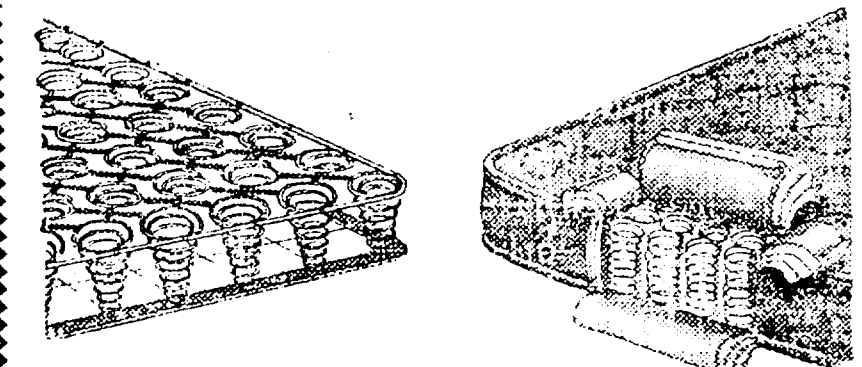

"You can go to hell as fast in a Pierce Arrow as in a tin lizzie; as fast on Fifth Avenue as on the Bowery."

"The fellow that says he can drink or let it alone, I've noticed, never lets it alone."

"Whenever a girl gets too stuck up to marry a guy who has 140 acres and 100 red hogs because he doesn't know a tango from a load of hay, she's due to be an old maid or to hitch-up with some ten-dollar-week sissy."

PLANS FOR PARK THROWN ASIDE BY 'CITY DADS'

Committee Named to Confer With Industries for Help in Project

The city park project was given a setback in council last night and the city dads made their first move toward the construction of a sewage disposal plant, a project they declared far more important than a playground.

Vattier Courtright, field engineer, reported he believed the park project listed with WPA would be approved as soon as the land was purchased and the city approved the expenditure of between $2,000 and $3,000 for material expenses. Under the blanket project listed for the playground the government would spend about $14,000 of which $2,000 would be material costs.

Sees Forced Plant

Councilman C. O. Leist stated he believed a city disposal plant was far more important at this time than the park and it would be only a short time until the city will be forced to construct a plant.

Howard Fosnaugh, former Circleville resident now a WPA official in Columbus, spoke before council in a recessed session and introduced Allen Meyer, Columbus engineer who has designed a number of disposal plants in Franklin-co to be constructed as WPA projects.

Sewage plant projects have received speedy approval as WPA projects, councilmen were told, and it appeared plans would be made at once for a Circleville plant.

Frank Baker, president pro tem, appointed Ben Gordon, William Reid and Daniel Ryan on a committee to visit the officials of the Container Corporation to learn if the company would cooperate with the city in the construction of the plant. Canning factories and dairies using the city sewer system for disposing of refuse from their plants many also be included in the program.

SURVEY URGES ORIENT SCHOOL FOR EPILEPTICS

Sherrill Advises Governor to Make Gallipolis Hospital for Feeble-Minded

COLUMBUS, Nov. 7—(INS)—The Ohio Government Survey committee today recommended to Governor Davey the establishment of a state division of mental hygiene in the welfare department.

"Ohio has sunk to a low ebb in its program for these defective groups," the survey group declared. "Under a proper program not more than one-tenth of the 133,000 feeble-minded persons in the state would need institutionalization."

The group urged that the state institution for feeble minded at Orient be made an institution for epileptics and that the state epileptic institution at Gallipolis be used for care of feeble minded.

- 1—Psychiatric and child guidance clinics to prevent necessity of institutionalization;
- 2—Special local classes and local schools for feeble minded and retarded children;
- 3—State institutions serving as training schools as far as inmates are capable of training;
- 4—Development of the colony plan for feeble minded; and
- 5—Development of family or board home care.

"DOCTOR, should my family use Pasteurized Milk?"

Here is what these world-famous medical men say about it:

Follow the Advice of These Authorities and Your Family Doctor . . .

Buy Pasteurized Milk!

DR. E. V. McCOLLUM, JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY:

"Every city should enforce the pasteurization of its milk supply. The reasons for this are clear and accepted by all who are in a position as a result of scientific training to understand the underlying principles. I HAVE FOR YEARS INSISTED THAT EVERY CITY SHOULD HAVE ITS MILK SUPPLY PASTEURIZED AND UNDER CONDITIONS WHERE THE HEALTH OFFICER CAN EFFECTIVELY SUPERVISE THE PROCESS."

DR. M. J. ROSENAU, DEAN OF MEDICINE, HARVARD UNIVERSITY:

"Pasteurization is the simplest and cheapest method of avoiding dangers that may be present in raw milk. Pasteurization is a good form of sickness insurance for the consumer, and good business insurance for the producer."

DR. CHAS. H. MAYO, MAYO CLINIC, ROCHESTER, MINNESOTA:

"Everything should be done—clinical observation and examination of the cattle and PROPER PASTEURIZATION OF THE MILK. In fact money spent for such things is not expense, it is investment that will return dividends."

DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESON, COMMISSIONER OF HEALTH, CITY OF CHICAGO:

"Since the institution of an order in 1916 that all milk except certified be pasteurized, there has not been a single case of contagion traced to the milk supply, a record that speaks volumes for the EFFICIENCY OF PASTEURIZATION AS A PUBLIC MEASURE."

DR. LESLIE C. FRANK, OFFICE OF MILK INVESTIGATIONS, U. S. PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE:

"PASTEURIZATION PROPERLY DONE renders harmless or destroys all disease producing organisms known to be transmitted through milk to man, AND DOES NOT SIGNIFICANTLY IMPAIR OR ALTER THE FLAVOR AND FOOD VALUE OF MILK."
